

Health Junkies was founded by way of a group of health conscious buddies sharing a standard passion to be healthy, preserving good health through organic supplementation. We're from Wollongong, Australia - that is located one hour south of Sydney. The Wollongong coast is gifted with gorgeous and iconic seashores and landscapes.

People are very health driven, numerous who work very hard in the gym to attain the ideal "beach body" everyone desires. We've united on a mission to generate a website that provides people with extremely top quality products for those individuals who want to maintain a wholesome lifestyle, or those attempting to achieve entire body changes, like weight reduction or muscle gain.

During our combined twenty years' experience in the market, we've observed one alarming point continuing to surfaces again and again. People who take health supplements are 'unimpressed' - to state the least, with the current state of the supplement business - and with good reason. There are way too many items on the shelves that are marketed as "healthy", but contain poor ingredients, and are regarded as contaminated with heavy metals or chemicals. The end result is this - health products you're taking and you think to be healthy, could possibly be doing you damage.

Health Junkies are making a stance to completely clean up the supplement business by launching products which are nothing less than 'the best', and also do what they claim. We've forged close human relationships, and built tight bonds with providers who share our really top quality standards and ethics.
